

LEUCOTHOE
AXILLARIS ReJoyce PPAF

Enjoy year-round color & interest with this exciting new Leucothoe!

This low-growing, evergreen shrub is a native of the southeastern United States, where it thrives in woodland settings, or on slopes with dappled sunlight. In spring, new growth emerges a fiery scarlet, contrasted against tidy mounds of fresh green. Short clusters of white, urn-shaped flowers, born on gracefully arching stems, appear among the lush, green leaves in May. When autumn rolls around, 'ReJoyce' erupts into color once again, as its foliage turns brilliant hues of red, orange and burgundy – the colorful display persisting through winter.

'Rejoyce' is ideally suited for planting in naturalized woodland areas, as a foundation planting in shade, or in a shady garden container.

Leucothoe axillaris 'ReJoyce' PPAF

- Low growing, gracefully arching, evergreen shrub
- Year-round interest
- Spring new growth is bright red
- Lush green summer foliage
- White, urn-shaped flowers born on arching stems in May
- Red, orange and burgundy fall colors persist through winter
- 24 to 36" tall x 36 to 42" wide
- Part shade; average soil that is moist but well-drained
- USDA Zone 6 to 9
- Disease and deer resistant
- Resistant to root rot
- Does not leaf spot in a nursery setting

Please Call for Available Sizes and Prices

toll free (800) 555-1414
sales@briggsnursery.com
www.briggsnursery.com

BRIGGS NURSERY
Quality that Grows™